Specification

1. The title of the invention is not descriptive. A new title is required that is clearly indicative of the invention to which the claims are directed.

The specification has been checked to the extent necessary to determine the presence of all possible minor errors. However, the applicant's cooperation is requested in correcting any errors of which applicant may become aware in the specification.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

Art Unit: 2821

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

3. Claims 1-7 and 18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Young (US Pat. 7,208,881).

Young discloses an integrated lighting module comprising:

(a) one or more light-emitting elements mounted on a thermally conductive substrate (39, 37) for generating illumination (LEDs);

(b) an optical system optically coupled to the one or more light-emitting elements for manipulating the illumination (Figs. 1 and 3);

(c) a feedback system for collecting information representative of operational characteristics of the one or more light-emitting elements, said feedback system generating one or more signals representative of said information, the feedback system includes one or more optical sensors (48) configured to generate signals representative of the illumination generated by the one or more light-emitting elements, the optical system comprises an optical element for capturing and directing a portion of the illumination to the one or more optical sensors, said signals representative of any one or more characteristics selected from the group comprising illumination colour, illumination correlated colour temperature (46) and illumination intensity (48);

(d) a thermal management system from a thermionic device (35) in thermal contact with the one or more light- emitting elements, said thermal management system including heat sink (37) wherein heat pipes are suggested interchangeably (col. 3, lines 29-33) for conducting heat away from the one or more light-emitting elements; and

(e) a drive and control system (42, 43, 45, 47) receiving the one or more signals from the feedback system, said drive and control system regulating input power and generating and sending control signals to the one or more light-emitting elements, said control signals generated based on predetermined control parameters and said one or more signals.
